

Molly Brown House Museum: Dress like Elizabeth Cady Stanton: (Hi)Story Time Activity

Paper dolls have a long history as a toy for young girls and boys. In the 1860s, magazines would include paper dolls with the latest fashions for children to play with.

As a young girl, Elizabeth Cady Stanton read her father's law books, which led her to fight for women's rights. She would have played with dolls and paper dolls as a child.

Instructions:

1. Draw your own face or cut out your face from a photograph and glue it to the paper doll.
2. Color the dresses.
3. Cut everything out!
