

Molly Brown House Museum

Molly the Activist

Margaret Brown used her wealth to help people in Denver and across the United States. She was an activist and a philanthropist who showed civic virtue by putting others above herself.

She donated money to different causes and was an active participant helping women get the right to vote in the United States. She also helped in the war effort during WW1.

What would you do to help others, even right now in your community?

What is something you are passionate about that you feel needs changing?

Make a poster about what you would like to see changed. It can be something for your school such as longer lunch periods, or for the country such as no stray animals or the world such as water for all.

Email a picture of your poster to education@mollybrown.org and you can be part of a digital gallery!
